- KOMU is a dual NBC/CW+-affiliated television station licensed to Columbia, Missouri, United States and serving the Columbia-Jefferson City television market.
- I have served as an intern digital producer in KOMU
- I produced every news on time and cooperate well with reporters to help them work on video clips editing.

Investigative reporter reporter

Jan 2019 - Jun 2019
mid-missouri

- I worked on a half-year long investigative news package with my two teammates.
- We had a specified depth coverages of potential local issues in five media formats (video, audio, articles, social media and infographics), provided a better understanding for audiences on their community.
- Grasping skills on interview, especially look for potential sources and guests for our news package.
- Last semester, I did four stories:
1. Misinformation and social media influences a parent's decision to vaccinate their child, being one of the driving factors why mid-Missouri has low HPV vaccination rates.
2. Missouri's prison system is running at 105 percent of capacity. On Feb.4, 2019, a new women- only facility, Fulton Community Supervision Center was founded as the first all- female residential probation and program in the State. The supervisor of this program are expecting to stop the cycle of folks going to prison.
3. How disinfectant chemicals in water affect Columbia citizens.
4. Cities are claiming that a decrease in sales tax revenue is resulting in a lack of project funding, but the data does not support the claim. Business are shut down; more people are out of town to big cities.
